»» What is an API

An API (Application Programming Interface) is a set of rules that allows two systems to talk to each other — like a waiter that takes your order to the kitchen and brings back your meal.

In practice:

An institution sends a LANGUAGECERT's score Unique Reference Number → our API checks the database → it returns a verified pass/fail score report. No emails. No manual checking. No risk of fraud.

Slate Integration

LANGUAGECERT Academic scores can now be delivered directly into Slate. Institutions no longer need separate portals, email attachments or manual document uploads. Admissions teams can access official results within the systems and workflows they already use.

This helps admissions teams:

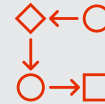

Receive scores
securely and automatically

Reduce manual
uploads, email
handling and
portal checks

Strengthen
score verification
and integrity

Review results
inside their existing admissions
workflow

Support faster decisions for international applicants

Available for institutions using Slate
